JAMES A. FELIX, CIVIL WAR VET, DIES AT HOME

Old Age Causes Death Of Veteran Guide After Illness Of 5 Weeks.

INJURED YEARS AGO WITH AXE

James Anthony Felix, 84, veteran of the Civil war, a battlefield employee for 25 years and later a battlefield guide, died at the home of his son, Robert A. Felix, along the Emmitsburg road, three miles south of here, at 9:10 o'clock this morning. Death followed an illness of five weeks from the infirmities of age.

While working on the battlefield, Mr. Felix was in charge of the building and rebuilding of fences. From records he kept during the quarter of a century of service on the national park, Mr. Felix built and rebuilt more than a million panels of fences.

Battlefield Guide

About six years ago, Mr. Felix quit the federal service and became a battlefield guide.

He enlisted as a private in Co. K, 184th Pennsylvania volunteers, commanded by Captain W. H. Adams, and served from September 10, 1864 to May 15, 1865. He participated in several engagements in the vicinity of Petersburg, Virginia.

Mr. Felix was partially disabled 46 years ago when an axe he was wielding struck him on the left knee. Following that accident, he walked with a limp.

Mr. Felix was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Felix, and was born near Gettysburg, and always lived in this vicinity.

He is survived by two daughters and four sons:

Charles H. Felix, Rouzerville; Frank Felix, Gettysburg; R. D.; J. Harvey Felix, Pottsville; Mrs. Charles C. Trostle, York street; Miss Carrie Felix, Steelton; and Robert A. Felix, with whom he resided. Nineteen grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren also survive. Mrs. Felix died May 21, 1925.

He was a member of Corporal Skelly G. A. R. post, No. 9, and St. James Lutheran church.

Funeral services from the home of his son, Robert Felix, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Rev. Earl J. Bowman officiating. Interment in Evergreen cemetery where Sons of Veterans will conduct services.

"UP IN THE AIR" FULL OF MIRTH

Plot Moves Fast In Play Sponsored By American Legion, Is Report.

"Up in the Air," a musical farce, to be produced by local talent at the Gettysburg high school, Monday and Tuesday evenings for the benefit of the Albert J. Lentz American Legion post, is chock-full of excitement, according to advance notices.

The action takes place in the mountains and the plot moves so rapidly and becomes so complicated that before long everyone is literally "up in the air."

Included in the cast is a grizzly old westerner, played by Joseph Chamberlain, operating a tourist camp and breaking up bottles on the highway to puncture tires; a timid young man pretending to be a champion mountain climber to impress his sweetheart; a sorely oppressed husband, Fred Pfeffer, badly hen-pecked by his strong-minded wife, Miss Pauline Little, and their spoiled son, Louis Wiener, whose pastime is kicking folks in the shins; two desperate bootleggers and gunmen, some Quaker pioneers, crooks and border police.

The choruses have been drilled in snappy dance routines and many pleasing musical numbers are included in the score.

The show will start promptly at 8 o'clock each evening.

Miss Mary Robinson, of the John B. Rogers company, is directing the performance.

WEATHER REPORT

Partly cloudy and much colder tonight. Cold wave in north and west portion, probably snow flurries in the northeast portion tonight. Sunday fair, colder in the southeast portion.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

To the Editor of The Times: East Vaughn, N. M., Feb. 14.—We left Texarkana at daylight in a hard rain and low fog. Made Ft. Worth, then made condition clear across Texas, but here we hit a real snowstorm and Captain Hawkes couldn't see, so we landed on emergency government landing field. A committee immediately waited on me to speak here on behalf of snow relief fund. Friday, the thirteenth, may not be exactly unlucky, but it hasn't done us a whole lot of good. Secretary Ingalls is with the fleet in Panama and wanted his ship on the West coast.

Wait a minute, here is Hawkes. Says it's cleared a little and we can make Albuquerque.

So long, Will Rogers.

J. W. GILBERT ENJOINED FROM GUIDING HERE

Author Of Book On Battle Says He Will Fight Action In Courts.

QUARREL WITH DAVIS CAUSE

J. Warren Gilbert, Gettysburg battlefield guide and author of a book on the battle of Gettysburg, was served with a temporary injunction, Friday afternoon, enjoining him from continuing as a guide.

The writ, issued out of the United States district court for the middle district of Pennsylvania, was served on Gilbert about 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, by a United States deputy marshal.

A hearing on the injunction will be held in the federal court at Scranton on March 9. Both Gilbert and his attorney, George M. Walter, today said they would fight the proceedings in an effort to void the writ.

Allege Disobedience

Although no copy of the allegations upon which the writ was based could be secured and the various parties interested were hesitant about discussing the affair, it was understood that the temporary injunction was based on alleged insubordination and disobedience on the part of Gilbert.

Col. E. E. Davis, superintendent of the Gettysburg national park, who in December notified Gilbert to refrain from acting as a guide for reasons then given as insubordination and disobedience, Gilbert refused to abide by the superintendent's edict and continued to serve as a guide. The injunction followed.

This is the first time such action has been taken against a licensed guide, although injunction proceedings were once taken against an unlicensed guide to stop him from taking tourists over the battlefield. The federal court made the first injunction permanent, with the provision that the unlicensed guide be given an opportunity to take the required examination.

No Statement

At the office of the superintendent of the national park, Colonel Davis would not make a statement. He was represented as taking the position that this proceeding will determine once and for all whether or not he is to have full authority over the battlefield guides.

He is understood to have stated that if the court fails to make permanent the injunction against Gilbert the battlefield will be thrown open to anyone who desires to escort tourists through the national park.

Among the charges against Gilbert is said to be one that he used derogatory language in speaking of Colonel Davis and the national park office; that he failed to take certain tourist parties to Culp's Hill and Little Round Top. While refusing to admit or deny these allegations on which the temporary injunction was based, Gilbert said he would deny all charges in his answer to the writ.

None on Battlefield

Gilbert contends that none of the alleged infractions of the park rules and regulations occurred on the battlefield, and that, consequently, the national park authorities have no jurisdiction.

Gilbert is the author of the book entitled "The Blue and the Gray," a story of the battle of Gettysburg. He is one of the oldest guides in service here. His father fought in the battle here.

The anniversary celebration will be held in the middle of May. The presidents of all colleges and universities in Pennsylvania and elsewhere will be invited to participate in the observance. CONGRESSMAN
GOES ON TRIAL

Charged With Receiving Bribes For Jobs In Postoffice.

Indianapolis, Feb. 14 (AP).—Acceptance of bribes from persons desiring appointments in the postal service was charged in a federal grand jury indictment returned Friday against Harry E. Rowbottom, representative in congress from the first Indiana district.

The indictment failed to provoke from the congressman, whose home is in Evansville, any comment on the charges. He has been under arrest since January 27, when an affidavit was filed against him by District Attorney George R. Jeffrey, charging the acceptance of $750 for recommending the appointment of a rural mail carrier. He will continue at liberty under $10,000 bond pending arraignment February 27.

Conspiracy Also Charged
Rowbottom was the only person indicted, although the grand jury charged a conspiracy in the matter of obtaining postal appointments in his district.

The specific charges in the indictment include the acceptance of $750 from Walter C. Ayer, for recommending the appointment of a relative, Gresham Ayer, as rural mail carrier at Rockport; the acceptance of $800 from S. Grant Johnson for appointment as postmaster at Dale, and receipt of $200 from McKinley Ayer for the postmastership at Chrisney.

A charge is also made of conspiracy with various persons to take from the Ayers and Johnson "money, property and other things of value in exchange for aid in obtaining postal appointments."

TWO FATALLY
HURT IN CRASHES

Automobile Hit By Train;
Union Bridge Youth In Overturned Car.

One young man was instantly killed and another was fatally hurt in automobile accidents near Westminster Friday.

Clarence Heindel, 19, of Lineboro, was killed almost instantly when a car which he was driving collided with a Western Maryland freight train. Woodrow Cramer, 18, of Union Bridge, was fatally injured and John Utermahlen, 36, of Gordon, Virginia, and Paul Selby, also of Union Bridge, were hurt when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a fence near Johns-ville early Friday morning and upset.

Pinned Under Car
Cramer was pinned under the car and internally injured. He died soon after being taken to the City hospital at Frederick.

The men in a car driven by Utermahlen left Union Bridge for a drive shortly after midnight and were returning when the accident occurred. Cramer, son of Howard and Cramer, was taken to the hospital from the office of a physician in Union Bridge.

Utermahlen, Yingling and Selby received cuts and bruises which did not require hospital treatment. The automobile, owned by Utermahlen, was badly damaged. Besides his parents, Cramer is survived by two brothers and two sisters.

Heindel is believed to have been killed almost instantly when his automobile and a freight train collided at the Lineboro crossing of the Western Maryland railway. He was pronounced dead by Dr. William Danner, of Manchester.

An investigation of this accident was begun by State's Attorney Theodore F. Brown and Sheriff Ray Yohn, of Carroll county, Maryland, who visited the scene of the crash and impounded a coroner's jury. An inquest will be held at Lineboro Monday afternoon.

Eggs, Epithets, Blows Fly Fast
In Chicago's Mayoralty Drive

Chicago, Feb. 14.—"And I want to apologize," said Mayor William Hale Thompson in a campaign speech Friday, "for having said a man as John Lyle in Chicago. He's a dirty—"

"Why, you lying skunk," shouted a man in the audience at the Garlick theatre, where Thompson was furthering his campaign for re-nomination. "Take that, and that, and that."

"Barn" smacked an egg on the stage. "Whack," smashed another egg on a chair behind Thompson. "Piop" went a third egg on the mayor's knee.

Cops Rescue Egg Tosser
A howling mob grabbed the egg-tosser and started to beat him while Thompson sputtered. A flying wedge of policemen finally rescued him and thumped him off to jail.

ROME DENIES
STORY AGAIN

Vanderbilt Tells His Version
Of Hit-Run Case In California.

Rome, Feb. 14 (AP).—Officials of the foreign office Friday reiterated that Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., never rode in an automobile with Premier Mussolini and that the Duce's car never struck any human being. They added that his one driving casualty was several years ago when his machine killed a dog.

The statement said the foreign office was not interested in the varying versions of an incident which never occurred, as given by Vanderbilt and Major General Smedley D. Butler, U. S. M. C. It recalled that after Italian dignity was offended by the remarks, the United States had apologized and Mussolini had said the incident was closed and already forgotten.

Los Angeles, Feb. 14 (AP).—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., relating Friday his version of the hit-and-run automobile story involving Premier Mussolini, of Italy, said he had been made "the goat" by Major General Smedley D. Butler, U. S. M. C., summoned for court-martial but later freed with a reprimand because of his remarks about the story.

"I was riding with Mussolini, who drove," Vanderbilt said. "A small child ran in front of the machine at a sharp turn in the road and was hit. I looked back to see if the child was hurt. Mussolini placed his hand on my knee and said: 'Never look back, Vanderbilt; always look ahead in life.'"

The statement was made shortly after Vanderbilt arrived here from Phoenix, Arizona. Several attempts to locate him followed the issuance by the Italian foreign office of a second denial of the story were met at the homes of friends with the reply "Mr. Vanderbilt is out."

Marines To Be Taken
Out Of Nicaragua
In Gradual Way

Washington, Feb. 14 (AP).—Rapid withdrawal of Marines from Nicaragua to parallel the upbuilding of the national guard of the republic has been agreed upon by the American and Nicaraguan governments.

Under the plan, as disclosed Friday by Secretary Stimson, complete removal of marines from the republic will be accomplished by next year.

Along the the upbuilding of the national guard, the agreement calls for a vigorous drive by it against the insurgents who have in the past stirred the republic to turbulent uprisings.

Accepted by Moncada

Mr. Stimson announced the plan had been accepted by the Nicaraguan president and as the first step toward its fulfillment, all combat marines now stationed there would be removed immediately.

By June the plan contemplates only about 500 marines will remain there. These would be of a non-combat class principally engaged in training the national guard and in air-unit activities necessary to transmit supplies to parts of the country inaccessible because of lack of roads and railways.

As the withdrawal goes ahead Nicaragua will increase its national guard by 500 men, or to a total of about 2,000. They will begin immediately a campaign against the insurgents.

Marconi Sees Startling Radio
Developments In Near Future

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—Guglielmo Marconi, pioneer inventor, believes radio should not be encumbered with governmental red tape.

He said so in a radio interview by short waves, the first ever held, between a newspaperman in New York and Senator Marconi at Vatican City over the new station HVJ, 3,500 miles away. He hinted at the possibility of an important radio development within the next year.

Explaining that the success of the HVJ transmissions was due chiefly to the use of a new uniform aerial and to the steadiness of the carrier wave, which is controlled by a new tube oscillator circuit, Marconi added:

Not Tied Down By Rules

"We were also fortunate to have been given a free hand by the Vatican authorities; and I think also our success was due to the fact that we were not tied down by rules and specifications. It is much better when one has a free hand than when one is tied down to data by

Read The Bible With Us Daily

I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies
a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service.

And be not conformed to this world:
but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God.

For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think: but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man
the measure of faith.

For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office:

So we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another.

Having then gifts differing according to the grace that is given to us, whether prophecy, let us prophesy according to the proportion of faith:

Or ministry, let us wait on our ministering: or he that teacheth, on teaching:

Or he that exhorteth, on exhortation: he
that giveth, let him do it with simplicity:
he that ruleth, with diligence: he that sheweth mercy, with cheerfulness.

Early in the meeting it was pointed out that some time in the

The GETTYSBURG TIMES

NEW YORK
Day by Day
by O. O. McIntyre

New York, Feb. 14.—At my time of life someone would suggest a raccoon coat. It was pointed out they were worn not only by college boys
but by grownups—men of affairs
such as Otto Kahn, his brother Agha, actors, explorers, bootleggers and other potentates.

I'm the sort who believes all the poppycock I hear. Nobody ever took the trouble to explain the facts of life. Anyway it is fun believing things. To this day I am moved to tears by a St. Bernard dog. It's the result of that Third Reader story.

Remember? Old Rover misses his master while a snow piles up. He whimpers a bit and plods on through the shrieking night, locating him 15 miles away buried under a drift. He digs him out, topples him across his back and away they go to a warm fireside. Good old Rover! Or maybe it's Flido.

Secretly I have been waiting a chance at a raccoon coat but though it was best to wait until the college craze wore off. If I had bought one during the height Mr.
Hearst or somebody might send me back to Yale. I only needed to hear elders were taking them up.

And I lit a shuck for a clothing store. "Something Christmasy in a raccoon coat!" I told the clerk, air-ily as though the hot blood of youth ran fast and I was far removed from cast-iron deer, music boxes and heavy flannels in the winter
time. "For yourself?" he inquired unsharpening his eyebrows.

"Certainly"—there was no turning back. I had gone too far—"Don't you keep them for grown ups?" He said they did but somehow didn't put his soul into it. In fact I detected a sly wink at a fellow clerk
as he waved: "This way, please!"

What I wanted was something long, roomy, protective. All my overcoats are short, dinky and split up the back. I needed one that would trail on the ground, smell like a timber wolf and from which I could shoot out my head or withdraw it, turtle fashion. I got it.

—OO—

If I know great-coats this was a honey. When you got into it you didn't walk, you barged—like Old Ma, the Ringling elephant, swaying and lumbering into the arena.
When I looked at my hands they seemed canary claws and my feet
could pass for those of a Singer Midget. When I walked before the array of mirrors the clerks gathered around. And I heard a craning customer inquire: "What does he do —advertise cigars or something?"

—OO—

Never did I imagine a raccoon coat could inspire such street tit-tling. For years I endured hoots of spat jeers but compared to—I must have my jasper—raccoon shouters they are a picnic. I hadn't cleared the doorway until a smartie cracked: "Paul McCullough without his straw hat!"

—OO—

To change from a light weight seasucker to a raccoon without practice is not easy. In two blocks I worked up a perspiration. At the fourth block I was steaming. And at the end of the sixth wobbly, Things began to swim and there was a ding-donging in my ears. There were several blocks to go but I determined to carry on bravely—the McIntyres are like that except around Easter But the world was growing blacker. The sky line didn't look any bigger than Pas-saic's. Finally I reeled against a bill board. Out of the fog came a far away voice: "Anything the matter, buddy?"

"Nothing important," I gasped
weakly. "Only I'm slowly suffocating. Tell the folks to keep stiff upper lips just as though I were right with them."

—OO—

Well, maybe that is exaggerated
but I was about an inch from a real swoon—I think in headlines—as a throwback to copy reading days and I saw the steamer: "Venerable Journalist Goes Collegiate; Found Delirious."

—OO—

But the big jolt was when I staggered into my apartment. The dogs were awaiting when I threw open the door. The Sealham gave a despairing yelp and fled under the bed. The Boston made a flank attack, bit into the fur and looked foolish. My wife merely looked up from a book, murmured, "Rah, rah, rah!" and went on reading.

The CRIME IN THE DUTCH GARDEN

By Herbert Adams

SYNOPSIS: Annabelle Querdling's murder furnishes a mystery on which possible new light is shed when Jimmie Haswell, amateur sleuth, and Superintendent Richmond learn at the inquest that she had written a will disinheriting her nieces, Marjorie and Evelyn Blake, in the event of marriage. Marjorie had discovered the fatal crushing of her aunt by a toppled image, but both she and her sister, Evelyn, who was with her fiancé, Lionel Duckworth, in the music room, when the body was found, deny their guilt. So do Duckworth, Dr. Netherton and Major Gresham, the spinster's jilted suitor, when their presence on the premises is admitted. After questioning these and other witnesses, the coroner's jury takes the case just before Vincent Blake, of London, brother of the nieces and possible beneficiary of the will, appears. He admits that he was the stranger seen near the ground on the fatal night, but denies he had entered the grounds. The superintendent strongly suspects him.

Chapter 16
HUNTING THE WILL

Haswell considered Richmond's presentation of Blake's position. "Are you suggesting?" he asked finally, "that the nephew murdered Miss Querdling, that he stole the will—or both?"

"What do you think?"

"Well," he began, "it is not easy to see how Vincent could have known about the will, if the girls did not, and if only the aunt and her lawyer knew. If he is in it, he must have been in league with one or both of the girls. I think the will is unsigned, because Miss Querdling would not have opposed her lawyer's advice, and that it will be found, since there's little point in stealing an unsigned will."

"It is perplexing," sighed Richmond. "Yet, what about Blake and the murder? He benefits by it, was on the scene at the time and his explanation is weak."

"Let's admit he could have done it," said Jimmie. "If so, was it through impulse or plan? The latter seems unlikely. His presence here would excite comment, yet he motors here and leaves the car on the road outside. A murderer would come in secret, probably disguised, and would try to cover his tracks."

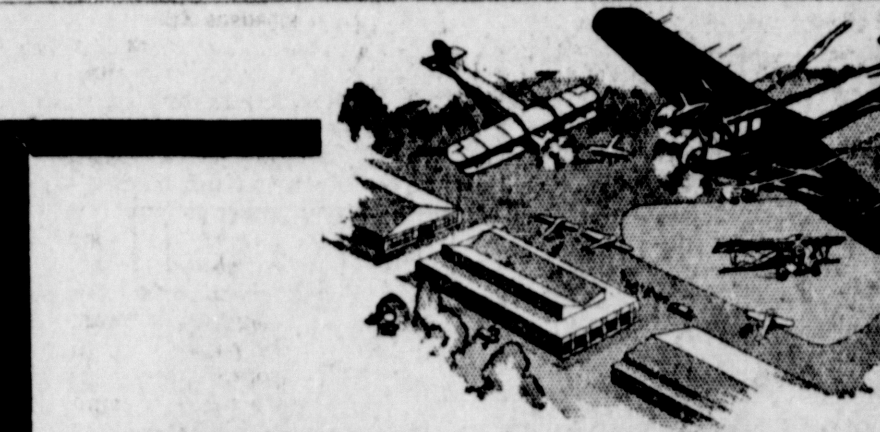

"Suppose," said Richmond, "he did see the old lady and she turned his scheme down. He might have lost control of himself and thrown the stone devil on her."

"There seems to be two reasons against that—or three. The first is that, so far as we can tell, he had no reason to think that her death would benefit him. While she lived there was hope. Second, he was liable to be seen in the gardens at any moment. Then, of course, the man may be a schemer, but I doubt his being capable of the sudden fury you suggest. If he came openly, he would have gone in at the proper entrance and been seen by Ben Acers. So for the present I am inclined to believe his story that he did not go in at all."

"Why don't you show me as clearly who did and not who didn't do it," growled Richmond.

Jimmie laughed as they started to the house for another look at the will. Morgan, the lawyer, was at Merrow Craig when they arrived and described the will as a lengthy document on stout paper, tied with green silk.

Evelyn said that her aunt was very methodical and usually dealt with business matters at her desk and that it was Janet's job to re-
